PLOTING WITH THE INDIANS.

For some time the telegraph has been telling us of the excitement among the Indians of the Northwest over the reported coming of a Messiah among them who was to roll back the earth upon the whites, restore the buffalo, and put the Indians again in possession of all the Great West. That able soldier and Indian fighter, General Nelson A. Miles, has been making an investigation of the subject among the Sioux, Cheyennes, Blackfeet, Shoshones, and other tribes of the Northwest. In an interview at St. Paul, a few days ago, in speaking of the result of his investigations, General Miles was asked:

"Who do you think is responsible for this imposture upon the Indians?"

His reply was: "I cannot state positively, but it is my belief that the Mormons are the prime movers in it. This is not a hard statement to believe for there are 200,000 Mormons and they themselves believe in prophets and spiritual intercourse, and they even now claim to hold intercourse with the spirit of Joe Smith; besides, they have had missionaries at work among the Indians for many years and have made many converts."

General Miles was stationed in the West for many years and is thoroughly familiar with the customs and beliefs of the Mormons and with their dealings with the Indians. He is fully aware of their habit of enlisting the aid of Indians to massacre California emigrants. In the days when the Danites were the most blood-thirsty, and he knows well their method of work among the savages.

At the Mormon Conference less than two months ago, President Woodruff declared that he had very recently held spiritual communication with the prophets Joseph Smith and Brigham Young. Knowing the practices of the Mormons, as all people who have lived in the West for any length of time do, and knowing how they have always worked upon the superstition of the Indians, the opinion of General Miles in regard to their infamous work seems well founded. What their object is, it is at present hard to conjecture, but surely back of it all there is some deep and well-laid plot to cause trouble to the Government.

NO REASON FOR DESPONDENCY.

Our Democratic friends are getting a great deal of consolation from the results of the Congressional elections over the country on the fourth and endeavoring to demonstrate from them the great progress free trade has made in the past two years. A careful analysis of the vote, however, shows that the Democratic gain, outside of where there was a coalition with the Farmers Alliance, was not due to any increase in Democratic votes. There is no need in disguising the fact that many Republican leaders in the East were not satisfied with the course of the administration and either failed to enter the campaign at all, or else gave but a half-hearted support to the ticket. Upon the subject of no increase in the popular vote for the Democracy, it is well to quote from a Washington special to the San Francisco Chronicle a few days ago:

Senator Arthur P. Gorman, of Maryland, is generally deemed to be one of the most astute politicians in the country. He has issued a note of warning to the Democratic party. In commenting upon the results of the election he has said that he has discovered that a careful review of the figures will show but a slight increase in the Democratic vote, while it shows a very large falling off in the Republican vote as compared with the vote of 1888.

Mr. Gorman has been practically the chairman both of the National and of the Congressional Democratic Committees. He has at least been the leading mind of both. He is not misled by the enthusiasm of the moment; he never talks at random; he has always been found to be a good counselor and a wise prophet. His language is:

"While the Democrats throughout the land are to be congratulated on the handsome manner in which they turned out and went to the polls on election day, it must not be forgotten that a careful review of the figures will show but a slight increase in the Democratic vote. It will not do for us to break ranks and imagine that we have secured a position that cannot be shaken by our enemies two years hence."

"I have been looking over the figures this morning, and I find that we polled within 500 of our full vote in Baltimore City, while the Republicans were several thousand short. So it goes in nearly all of the States. The returns show that the Republicans were disgusted with their leaders and refused to vote. They did not turn around and vote for us, but they simply remained away from the polls. Thus it will be seen that men do not change their politics any more readily than they change their religion. They will refuse to vote with their party, sometimes, but they seldom vote with their enemies. It therefore behooves our people to maintain their organization and endeavor to hold the advantage they have gained in the recent struggle."

Taking his warning suggestion for a guide, a very careful analysis has been made here today of the returns from the various Congressional districts, in order to ascertain whether the test which he has applied to Baltimore is applicable to the whole country. In order that the basis of comparison may be entirely fair, the gerrymandered districts were admitted, as well as those districts in the Western States, where the farmers' movement amounted practically to fanaticism.

It was found that the test of Mr. Gorman applies, with the exception indicated, to the Republican districts in the Northern States. In nearly all the districts examined, the Democratic vote cast on Tuesday is actually less than the Democratic vote cast in the same districts two years ago, while the Republican vote in all the districts examined was very much less.

In other words, what is called the great Democratic victory in the Northern States is a victory due to the fact that the Republicans stayed away from the polls. The landslide in favor of the Democracy was only made possible through Republican apathy.

The total Congressional vote of 1890 in the States named will be found to be very much less than it was in 1888, while the Republican vote in some of the districts is reduced by one-half. Why that vote was reduced it will be for the Republican statement to ascertain. Democrats who have not completely lost their heads over the unexpected and overwhelming victory which they have achieved with the aid of political allies of every description and the temporary indifference of the Republicans, are beginning to ask themselves the question, "What shall we do with our tremendous majority in the House of Representatives?"

From the southern portions of the West comes the prompt, hearty, unflinching response of Mills, Cray, Breckenridge, Bryan, Springer and their coadjutors and followers: "Pass a tariff bill framed on radical free trade lines; that is what our victory means, and we must hasten to gather its fruits." There can be no doubt that this demand will be enforced by Mills and his followers, since they believe that the voters of the United States have experienced a conversion from protection to free trade in the short space of two years.

This clearly indicates that neither the Republican party nor the cause of protection have been losing ground among the thinking people of the Nation. They will come to the front stronger and better prepared for battle in 1892 than they were in 1888. General Grant well said in 1875 that "The Democratic party can always be depended upon to do the wrong thing at the right time." With their enormous majority of 132 in the Fifty-Second Congress we may confidently expect Messrs. Mills, Breckenridge, O'Ferral, and other rampant free traders to go to such extremes that they will so unsettle the business interests of the country as to disgust thinking and business men. Republicans have no reason to feel despondent. The party, as a party, has not lost in the confidence of the people; it is only dissatisfaction at individuals in position now. Under the leadership of such a man as James G. Blaine in 1892 it will win the greatest victory since Grant's second election in '72.

It is absurd to say that the McKinley bill had anything to do with the Republican defeat November 4. The people of this country have had no opportunity to see how the McKinley bill will operate. It has not been in effect a month, and many portions of it do not go into effect until January, while others not until July of next year. The defeat is due very largely to the efforts of the importers of foreign goods, who worked on the retail dealers of the country, and the latter on the public. Despite the senseless popular upheaval, the McKinley bill will be the policy of the Government for years to come, and the campaign of 1892 will be fought and won on the same lines. Mark this prediction.

The Tucson Citizen well says: "If the McKinley tariff law is raising the prices of goods on which the tariff has been raised, how does it happen that those articles upon which the tariff has been lowered have not declined in price? This bill lowers the tariff on shoes 5 per cent, and yet our tariff reform friends are swearing that prices on shoes have advanced 30 per cent. If that is the way lowering the tariff affects prices, what would be the present price of shoes if they were on the free list?"

The Phoenix Herald is in error when it prints an item to the effect that the Territorial Normal School enrollment for October was over 90, and the average attendance 65, on account of sickness. The facts are that the number enrolled was 38, and the average of attendance 90 per cent. There was no sickness, and the 4 per cent of absence was caused by the school turning out to attend the circus.

The unstable condition of the money market in Wall Street the past few days will probably result in much good when all is settled and business resumes its wonted way again. There has been much wild speculation, and only a collapse of the fictitious values created by such means will restore confidence.

SILVER was $1.06 on election day, and it dropped to $1.02 three days later. Already the West is beginning to feel the evil effects of the Democratic victories achieved under the leadership of gold bugs and free traders of the East in the late elections.

Says the San Francisco Bulletin: "Salt River Valley in Arizona is coming to the front as a grain and fruit-producing country. Thousands of acres in orchards and vineyards will be planted this winter."

If the Gazette knows of men in this community who are making derogatory statements of Phoenix or the Salt River Valley it fails in its duty as a public journal if it does not name them.

MORMONS do not vote as they please. They vote just as the priesthood dictates and not according to belief or conscience.

The Sixteenth Legislature should abolish the fee system.

Prescott Notes.

From the Journal-Miner.

Prescott butchers keep venison on sale.

Many new buildings are being erected in Prescott.

The first snow of the winter has fallen, two inches in depth, and the mountains are covered.

It is rumored that E. A. Morrison, of Apache County, will soon enter into a law partnership with E. M. Sanford, of Prescott.

C. B. Genung appeared before the Board of Supervisors yesterday, to ask for aid in the attempt to discover the body of Charles Johnson, who was buried by a cave-in in his mine recently, near Stanton. The board refused to take action in the matter. Mr. Genung states that they have reached a point to within ten feet to where the body is supposed to be buried, but on account of the unsafe condition of the ground they have been unable to prosecute the work further without incurring greater expense than private individuals care to incur.
